

Farmville, Virginia

Many former filling/gas/service stations find new life for a completely different purpose. This former Texaco cottage-style canopy station in downtown Farmville, Virginia received a facelift in 2013 to become home of an outdoor outfitter servicing visitors to nearby High Bridge Trail State Park. At night, the lighted stained glass Texaco sign in the front gable reminds visitors that old stations were built to last and still stand to serve.